Rail or not light rail? City council debated — again — whether the city should take a second look at LRT rather than BRT. SHANE GIBSON/METRO

BRT or LRT? Just make up your minds already!

Enough debate, proponents say.

'It's time to get the shovel in the ground,' says co-chair of riders' association

BERNICE PONTANILLA
bernice.pontanilla@metronews.ca

Winnipeg's city council decided to have the bus depart the station, not the train, voting against a further study of light-rail for the second phase of rapid transit.

However, the councillor behind the push for light rail transit (LRT) has vowed to keep the discussion alive.

"It's a lost opportunity but I don't think the debate is over," said Coun. Russ Wyatt following Tuesday's council meeting, which saw a 12-3 defeat of his LRT motion.

"It's an idea which, I think, will be here in the ... near future."

The meeting saw not only councillors and Mayor Sam Katz defend the $590-million bus rapid transit project that would link the downtown first phase to the University of Manitoba, but also citizens and representatives of different groups.

Harry Wolbert, co-chair of the Winnipeg Transit Riders' Association, said Tuesday "was a good day for supporters of bus rapid transit" and there's been enough debate — going back decades — over the project.

"I knew we had the votes, by how much I wasn't sure," said Wolbert after the meeting.

"There's been enough delays, enough grandstanding, let's get on with the project. We've debated the issue, as it's been said already, for 30, 40, 50 years.

"It's time to get the shovel in the ground and finish the project."

Mayor Sam Katz said he had no doubt in his mind that "a lot of the headlines had been exaggerated" and there was nowhere near enough support to derail the second phase of rapid transit.

Referendum question?

Coun. Jeff Browaty's motion to have the $590-million bus rapid transit project included as a referendum question during the Oct. 22 civic election was automatically referred to executive policy committee.

3.5 days. Unpaid leave a no-go for city staffers

A cost-saving measure that would have seen city staff forced to take an unpaid leave at the end of this year has ended up in the dustbin.

Coun. Russ Wyatt, the architect of the forced leave between Christmas and New Year's dubbed "Wyatt Winter," moved a motion during Tuesday's city council meeting that the city "suspend the planned 3.5 unpaid leave days scheduled for December 2014."

"When I first proposed the concept, it was, if you recall, about 13 Fridays in the summer, the savings was well over $10 million estimated by our public service at the time," said Wyatt, adding that the savings from the winter days would have been $1.5 million.

"After the winter that we just went through ... and not knowing what the next winter is going to be like, and knowing what our staff had to do, I just felt at this point it moved away from its original intent."

Dave Sauer, president of the Winnipeg Labour Council, said he's pleased to see the forced unpaid leave for December gone; however, should Wyatt's summer days proposal return, he has no doubt the unions will fight it.

Sauer echoed comments made by Coun. Brian Mayes (St. Vital) that the city's legal department knew it would be difficult to defend the leave against a grievance filed by CUPE Local 500, the city's largest union.

"The legal costs were going to balloon and then the savings actually wouldn't have amounted to anything," added Sauer. BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Blue Bombers. Team's discounted bus transit plan gets sacked by city

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers have lost their first battle of the 2014 season. The city announced it is denying the team's request for a discount on bus transportation to and from Investors Group Field for the upcoming season.

"We are, however, pleased to be able to offer Transit's services as a transportation alternative to and from events at Investors Group Field," said Winnipeg's acting CAO, Deepak Joshi, in a release. METRO

Sounds of summer

Tune in. Get ready for a bevy of music festivals coming to downtown Winnipeg all summer long

SHANE GIBSON
shane.gibson@metronews.ca

The sounds of Manitoba summer music festivals are coming to downtown Winnipeg thanks to a new twist from Downtown Winnipeg BIZ's Downtown Concert Series.

This year, the free outdoor concerts, which run over the lunch hour every Wednesday at Air Canada Park and Millennium Library Park from June 4 through Aug. 27, will feature performers from nine different Manitoba festivals.

"Our city and our province are home to a bevy of wonderful festivals that are attended by hundreds of thousands of people every year and we really couldn't wait for these festivals to start," said Signy Gerrard of Downtown BIZ.

The festivals taking part in the series are the BIZ's own ManyFest, Dauphin's Countryfest, Gimli's Islendingadagurinn, Aboriginal Music Week, Folklorama, Big Fun Festival, MEME, Manitoba Ahbee, and the Winnipeg Folk Festival.

Folk Fest executive director Lynne Skromeda said the partnership fits lockstep with the festival's push to bring the fun of the annual summer gathering to the city year-round.

"We have the chance to work with an organization that is really important to our city but it also gives us the opportunity to showcase our festival to a new audience in a new way," she said.

Top brass says sexual harassment not a part of military culture

Commons defence committee. Commander grilled after damning magazine story says assault at epidemic level

The country's top military commander has been called on the parliamentary carpet to answer questions about reports of sexual violence in the military.

Gen. Tom Lawson, the chief of defence staff, was grilled Tuesday by the Commons defence committee about a recent magazine report that claimed sex assaults within the ranks are at an epidemic level.

The story, published by Maclean's and L'actualité magazines, interviewed several victims and examined a decade's worth of statistics documenting reported attacks.

Lawson told the committee he found the allegations disturbing, and acknowledged the courage of those victims who spoke out.

An internal review carried out since the claims were first reported last month has identified "some barriers" that prevent alleged victims from coming forward, he testified.

Lawson said an independent review from outside the military is being organized, one that will have the authority to interview military members and could potentially uncover fresh allegations of assault.

The exposé

The magazine story said military police get as many as 200 complaints of sexual assault each year, with many more cases going unreported by victims who fear the potential consequences from within the military hierarchy.

But he said he does not accept the notion that sexual violence and harassment are part of military culture, citing a recent internal survey that suggested harassment of all kinds has been declining steadily over the last decade.

Lawson said only a small percentage of those who took part in the 2012 survey said they've faced harassment, but he conceded the numbers are higher when the results are parsed by gender.

"I think there is an under-reporting going on," Lawson said, "and we need to do everything we can to deal with any issues that stand in the way of someone coming forward."

But defence critic Jack Harris didn't buy those assurances, saying that the issue has resurfaced time and again since a similar media exposé was written in the late 1990s.

"As a Canadian I'm more than concerned and disturbed," said Harris. National Defence is three years behind in reporting criminal statistics within the military to Parliament, he added.

'They are just dancing.' Iranians should be free to be Happy, Pharrell says

Pharrell Williams says everyone should be able to celebrate their joy — including Iranian youths who were arrested for posting an Internet video of them dancing to his song Happy.

Some in Iran see the video as promoting the spread of Western culture. Iranian laws ban women from dancing in public or appearing outside with heads uncovered.

Williams says he has "the utmost respect for people's religious views" and doesn't know much about Iranian law.

But he added: "The present is a gift, and if you just want to celebrate your happiness, you should be allowed to do that."

Speaking at an exhibit opening in Paris Monday, he said, "They are just dancing."

Do you know why a mortgage document is so big?

It's because there's a lot more in it than just the rate.

Why lowest isn't always best.

Don't get us wrong. A low rate is great. But most low rate mortgages come with restrictive terms that could keep you in your mortgage longer than you'd like. Which means paying interest longer than you'd like. So, instead of thinking about the cost of your mortgage in rate terms, think about it in dollar terms. For example, how much interest will you pay over the life of your mortgage?

How restrictive terms cost you in the end.

The key to saving interest costs is having the flexibility to increase payments or make extra payments. With rates as low as they are, regular lump sum and increased payments will save you more interest over the life of your mortgage. Even more than switching to bi-weekly payments![†]

Good advice is worth its weight in gold.

Locking in at today's low rates might be right for you. But keep in mind that small changes can make a big difference in helping you become mortgage-free faster so keeping that flexibility is essential.

So how can we offer a rate this low with the benefits you want?

Since we refuse to overload our mortgages with restrictions and we insist on giving people competitively low rates, the only way we can do it is for a limited time.

SPECIAL OFFER MORTGAGE RATE

* All mortgages are subject to applicable credit approval, Scotiabank residential mortgage standards and maximum permitted loan amounts. Scotiabank 5-Year Fixed Rate Special – The new mortgage must be set up as a 5-year closed term fixed rate mortgage at a rate of 2.97%. As of May 22nd, 2014, if there are no 'cost of borrowing' charges (for example, appraisal fees), the APR for the rate of 2.97% equals 2.95% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance). Where a typical appraisal fee of $300 is assumed (actual appraisal fees may vary), the APR equals 3.02% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance), for a term of 5 years – assuming a mortgage of $100,000 with a 25-year amortization. Scotia Flex Value*® Mortgage Special – Scotiabank Prime as of September 9, 2010 was 3.00%. As of May 22nd, 2014, the Scotia Flex Value® Mortgage – Closed 5 Year Term was 2.47%. If there are no 'cost of borrowing' charges (for example, appraisal fees), the APR for the rate of 2.47% equals 2.46% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance). Where a typical appraisal fee of $300 is assumed (actual appraisal fees may vary), the APR equals 2.52% (compounded semi-annually, not in advance), for a term of 5 years – assuming a mortgage of $100,000 with a 25-year amortization. The Scotia Flex Value® Mortgage interest rate varies with Scotiabank Prime.
These offers expire June 7th, 2014 but are subject to change or withdrawal at any time. The mortgage must be funded within 90 days of the application date. Other conditions may apply.

† Assuming a mortgage of $270,000 with a 25-year amortization at a rate of 2.97%, switching to bi-weekly payments will decrease your amortization to less than 23 years and save you approximately $14,130 in interest. Alternatively, assuming the same mortgage of $270,000 with a 25-year amortization at a rate of 2.97%, if you keep your monthly payment frequency but apply annual lump sum prepayments of $500 and increase your regular payments by just $20 every year, after your first year, you will decrease your amortization to less than 21 years and save approximately $18,923 in interest.

‘Every share made the difference’

Trois-Rivières, Que. Parents grateful after spread of Amber Alert on social media leads online sleuths to help locate missing baby

The mother of a day-old infant snatched from a Quebec hospital says she’s grateful to everyone who helped bring home her baby — especially the group of people who used social media to hunt down the alleged kidnapper.

Police issued an Amber Alert on Monday night after the newborn was abducted from the mother’s hospital room in Trois-Rivières by a woman allegedly wearing scrubs and posing as a nurse.

The alert, which included a security-camera photo of the suspect and a description of her car, was splashed across mainstream and social media within minutes.

Four young locals wasted little time picking up the cause and guided police to the woman’s home, where officers found the baby safe three hours later. Police also arrested a woman in her early 20s in connection with the kidnapping.

“Every click, every share made the difference,” Melissa McMahon, the infant’s mother, wrote Tuesday in a post on her Facebook page.

“Four marvellous people, whom we had the chance to meet, identified this woman thanks to Facebook … We felt a huge amount of support from the public. This victory is for you, too!!!”

The online detectives who helped find baby Victoria were identified as Charlene Plante, Marc-Andre Cote, Sharelle Bergeron and Melizanne Bergeron.

Melizanne Bergeron told reporters Tuesday in Trois-Rivières that she came across the information about the kidnapping on Facebook and showed the photo of the suspect to her friend Plante, who realized the woman was her neighbour.

She said they spotted the vehicle described in the alert parked outside the building, saw signs that someone was inside and called police. Officers, she added, arrived on the scene quickly and broke down the woman’s door.

“Thirty seconds after, the baby was in the hands of the police,” said Melizanne Bergeron, who touched Victoria as the officer cradling her walked past. “It was the best moment in my life. We were crying.”

Ministers unveil effort to educate girls about harm of sexual images

A public education campaign on cybersafety for girls that began four years ago in Atlantic Canada has added a section to educate girls about images depicting women as sexual objects.

The Atlantic ministers responsible for the status of women met in Charlottetown Tuesday to announce a new addition to a website set up to promote online safety for girls, which now includes information about the effects that the depiction of women and girls as sexual objects can have on self-esteem, self-confidence and self-image.

Valerie Docherty, the minister responsible for the status of women in Prince Edward Island, says “hypersexualization” can be an uncomfortable topic but it’s important to have the conversation.

Docherty was joined by her Atlantic colleagues, Marie-Claude Blais from New Brunswick, Joan Shea from Newfoundland and Labrador and Joanne Bernard from Nova Scotia.

Obama's plan. 9,800 troops to remain after war ends in Afghanistan

President Barack Obama will seek to keep 9,800 U.S. troops in Afghanistan after the war formally ends later this year and then will withdraw most of those forces by 2016, senior administration officials said Tuesday.

Obama's decision is largely in line with what military commanders have been seeking and will allow the president to fully end the American-led military effort by the time he leaves office.

The two-year plan is contingent on the Afghan government signing a bilateral security agreement with the U.S. While current Afghan President Hamid Karzai has declined to sign the agreement, U.S. officials are confident that either of the candidates seeking to replace him would approve it.

The plan calls for the U.S. military to draw down from its current force of 32,000 to 9,800 by the start of next year. Those troops would be dispatched throughout Afghanistan and focus on counterterrorism missions and training Afghan security forces. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pregnant woman stoned to death by her family

'Honour killing.' 20 family members attack woman, husband with bricks and batons outside high court

A pregnant woman was stoned to death by her own family in front of a Pakistani high court on Tuesday for marrying the man she loved.

Nearly 20 members of the woman's family, including her father and brothers, attacked her and her husband with batons and bricks in broad daylight before a crowd of onlookers in front of the high court of Lahore, police investigator Rana Mujahid said.

Hundreds of women are murdered every year in Muslim-majority Pakistan in so-called "honour killings" carried out by husbands or relatives as a punishment for alleged adultery or other illicit sexual behaviour, but public stoning is extremely rare.

Mujahid said the woman's father has been arrested for murder.

Another police officer, Naseem Butt, identified the slain woman as Farzana Parveen, 25, and said she had married Mohammad Iqbal against her family's wishes.

Her father, Mohammad Azeem, had filed an abduction case against Iqbal, which the couple was contesting, her lawyer Mustafa Kharal said.

He confirmed that she was three months' pregnant.

Parveen's relatives had waited outside the court, which is located on a main downtown thoroughfare.

As the couple walked up to the main gate, the family members fired shots in the air and tried to snatch her from Iqbal, her lawyer said.

When she resisted, her father, brothers and other relatives started beating her, eventually pelting her with bricks from a nearby construction site, Iqbal said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dream of owning a home? Keep dreaming

RBC study. Home ownership is seeming more like fantasy as reality of high prices and interest rates hits home

It's becoming increasingly difficult for families to own a home in Canada and affordability is only expected to get worse going forward, according to the Royal Bank of Canada.

With house prices continuing to rise, RBC said its affordability index deteriorated in the first quarter of this year — the third quarter that has happened out of the last four — with the deterioration particularly acute in the hot markets of Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver.

And RBC chief economist Craig Wright says keeping up with the cost of home ownership in the future is likely going to be an even bigger stretch for households.

"If prices continue to accelerate in key Canadian markets in the near term, affordability could come under pressure," the report points out.

"The eventual normalization of monetary policy will lead to substantial increases in interest rates over the medium term, which could be too much for other affordability determinants to counteract," it adds.

Home! Sweet (pricey) home!

Nationally, the index rose by 0.1 points to 43.2 per cent for detached bungalows and 0.3 points to 49.0 per cent for two-storey homes, while the measure for condos dipped 0.1 points to 27.9 per cent.

The affordability index measures the percentage of pre-tax household income that is needed to service the cost of owning a home at current market prices, including payments for a mortgage, utilities and property taxes. A reading of 50 per cent means service costs swallow up half of a household's pre-tax income.

Meanwhile, RBC said the erosion in affordability does not pose any immediate threat to the health of the Canadian housing market and that the Bank of Canada is not expected to begin nudging interest rates higher until the middle of 2015. Many economists don't expect the bank to act until 2016. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The people who float your workplace boat these days are takers, matchers and givers, according to a rising star in workaday psychology, Adam Grant, the youngest full professor at the Wharton School.

This guy is only 32, but he's already figured out how to navigate the concrete jungle and has written a New York Times bestseller about it, called, naturally, Give and Take. He's also the subject of a recent article in Slate.

Even though Grant has the fast-track record we usually associate with a taker — those Gordon-Gecko-greed-is-good types so familiar in the mythology of corporate America — he tries to be a giver, not just because his research shows that nice guys (and girls) can finish first.

Givers are defined by the fact that they will take care of other people with no expectation of reward. They do it precisely because they are selfless. So you can't game the give.

Most of us are matchers in the middle — I'll scratch your back with the understanding that you, at some point very soon, will scratch mine. Other people respect the matcher ethos, but no one actually loves a matcher, unless it's the matcher's mother, who is, by nature, a giver.

All the love is reserved for givers. Givers sow the seeds of harmony wherever they go. People want to work with them because they trust them ... and know they'll share the glory and take the blame.

Do you know anybody like that? If you do, you probably follow them around with big puppy eyes.

Takers are toxic. Grant says it's a good idea to keep a wooden stake, silver bullet and string of garlic handy to ward them off. Well, he doesn't put it in precisely those terms, but he does say that the negative impact of a taker can be three times that of the positive impact of a giver.

They suck the lifeblood out of an organization.

There is an easy way to spot a taker and it's not only because he or she doesn't drink ... wine. "The main sign that someone's a taker is kissing up and kicking down," he writes.

Just because you're a giver doesn't mean you put a Kick Me sign on your back before you go to work in the morning. Winning givers don't allow themselves to be kicked or stepped on; they don't overdo the giving to the detriment of their own work, and they give on a smartly scheduled basis as opposed to on impulse or whim.

Whatever you think (stop rolling your eyes), I think it's good to have permission to be a nice person. It's ironic to discover that while we've spent our lives learning to eat other dogs, happiness is a warm puppy.

And if you're a little bit good at being good, the rewards will come in your lifetime. Good dog!

Art that's worth crying over

'Aerial view of my emotions'

ROSE-LYNN FISHER
Artist-photographer based in Los Angeles

What inspired you to turn human tears into art?
One day I was crying but stopped and wondered if my tears of grief would look any different from tears of happiness. When I magnified them on a microscope, what I saw evoked a sense of place, like an aerial view of my emotional terrain. I was so intrigued by this that I started a project, which now comprises 100 of my own and others' tears.

How did you go about photographing the tears?
I collect a tear, put it onto a glass slide and view it through a standard microscope, magnified 10 to 40 times. After the tear sample has been either air-dried or covered, I photograph it using a digital microscopy camera.

They do look like strange landscapes.
Exactly. I marvel at the visual similarities between the microscopic world and the macro world of landscapes. Patterns of erosion etched into the earth over millions of years can look like the branched crystalline patterns of an evaporated tear that formed in less than a minute.

Worth mentioning. USDA projects to help protect soil, water quality

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is teaming with businesses, non-profits and others on a five-year, $2.4-billion program that will fund locally designed soil and water conservation projects nationwide, Secretary Tom Vilsack said Tuesday.

Authorized by the new farm law enacted earlier this year, the Regional Conservation Partnership Program is intended to involve the private sector more directly in planning and funding environmental protection initiatives tied to agriculture.

He described the projects to be funded as "clean water startup operations" that will benefit communities and watersheds, a departure from the department's more traditional approach of focusing on individual operators adopting practices such as no-till cultivation or planting buffer strips to prevent runoff into streams.

Quoted

"It's a new approach to conservation that is really going to encourage people to think in very innovative and creative ways."
Secretary Tom Vilsack

Universities, local and tribal governments, companies and sporting groups are among those eligible to devise plans and seek grants.

"By establishing new public-private partnerships, we can have an impact that's well beyond what the federal government could accomplish on its own," Vilsack said. "These efforts keep our land resilient and water clean, and promote tremendous economic growth in agriculture, construction, tourism and outdoor recreation and other industries."

In addition to protecting the environment, the projects will bolster the rural economy by supporting tourism and outdoor recreation jobs while avoiding pollution that would cost more to clean up, he said.

The USDA will spend $1.2 billion — including $400 million the first year — and raise an equal amount from participants. Successful applications will include offers of cash, labour or other contributions, as well as plans for achieving measurable solutions and using new approaches, said Jason Weller, chief of the Natural Resources Conservation Service. Disney has its wicked ways

Bold child's play

Angelina Jolie all in as villain

Angelina Jolie taking on the title role in Maleficent, telling the story of Sleeping Beauty from the villain's perspective, might have seemed like a no-brainer, but Jolie herself had her doubts. "I was a bit nervous to take her on. I don't have a big theatre voice. I don't do things that are kind of comedic. This is such a crazy idea. I'm a fairy? 'How was your day, honey?' 'I was a fairy,'" Jolie remembers telling husband Brad Pitt. "I was so challenged by it. For me as an actress to do something where I'm not taking myself so seriously or doing it for myself or doing it for art — just to remember what it is to play and entertain and try something bold."

But once she had the horns and the headdress and the augmented cheekbones and nose in place, she just went with it. "There's no halfway. If you're going to do it, you can't just kind of do it. You have to go fully into it and enjoy it," she says. "The original was done so well and her voice was so great. The way she was animated was so perfect. If anything, I was worried I'd fail the original. I practised a lot with my children. When I got them laughing, I figured I was on to something — well, they laughed, they cried." It's not all Mouse ears. Disney horns in on the dark side of fairy tales from the winged demon of Fantasia to Maleficent

IN FOCUS
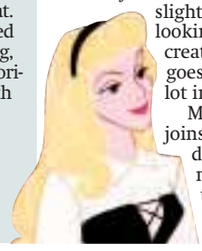
scene@metronews.ca

Hear the name Disney, and your first thoughts are likely about Mickey Mouse ears, Mary Poppins or the song Let it Go. Uplifting notions born from a company that brags it owns the Happiest Place on Earth.

But for all the cheery feelings the Mouse House has given us over the years, Disney villains have also inspired a nightmare or two.

This weekend, Maleficent creeps into theatres. Starring Angelina Jolie, it is the story of how the Sleeping Beauty villainess became evil after being betrayed by a child. With plumped up cheekbones and headgear with demonic horns, Jolie looks like something from a hellish Hieronymus Bosch painting.

"She isn't the pretty princess," says the actress. "She isn't a beautiful queen. She's a very awkward, pointy, slightly scary-looking horned creature who goes through a lot in her life."



Maleficent joins a long list of dastardly Disney villains to inspire sleepless nights.

Scar

In The Lion King, Scar (voice of Jeremy Irons) is the brother of the king, Mufasa (James Earl Jones). In a Shakespearean twist, Scar murders his brother and banishes his nephew to gain control of Pride Rock.

Most evil line? "Long live the King." — Scar to Mufasa before killing him.

Cruella De Vil

In the 1961 animated film and the 1996 live-action film, 101 Dalmatians, Cruella De Vil (voice of Betty Lou Gerson in the cartoon, Glenn Close in the flesh) is a diabolical fashionista who wants to incorporate puppy pelts into her wardrobe.

Most evil line? "Darling, I live for fur. I worship fur!"

Queen Grimhilde

Vanity pushes Queen Grimhilde (Lucille La Verne in the 1937 animated version) to try and destroy the life of her stepdaughter (Adriana Caselotti) in Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. The evil queen can't bear the thought that there is someone more beautiful than she, so she first orders her huntsman to kill Snow White and cut her heart out and when that doesn't work, she feeds the pretty girl a poisoned apple.

Most evil line? "Mirror, Mirror on the wall, who's the fairest of them all?"

Chernabog

Hands down, the scariest vision in any Disney film has to be Chernabog, the winged demon who briefly appears in the Night on Bald Mountain sequence of Fantasia. He is the essence of evil and according to Villians Wiki, his hobby is bringing the dead back to life so he can kill them again. Discussing the character in an interview, Walt Disney referred to him as Satan.

Most evil line? Chernabog doesn't have any lines. When you're this bad, you don't need dialogue.

Toronto native Owen Pallett's In Conflict is his first solo album in four years. PETER JUHL

'Bizarre and confusing': That's Owen's new disc

In Conflict. Pallett confesses that even he's mystified by the contents of his aptly named album

Quoted

"It's not an experience I typically have when I listen to my music. I'm usually thinking: 'Good work.' Now I'm kind of like, 'Oh my God, it's so crazy.'"

Owen Pallett, musician
on listening to his new record, In Conflict

Oft-awarded Canadian musician Owen Pallett recently hit pageview pay dirt with intelligent online magazine pieces analyzing the anatomy of such pop hits as Katy Perry's Teenage Dream and Daft Punk's Get Lucky from a trained musician's perspective.

Don't ask him to do the same with his own latest record, the oblique In Conflict, out this week.

Even he's mystified by the first collection of new material he's put out in four years.

"I'll be honest with you, this is the most confusing record that I've made," the Toronto native once known as Final Fantasy said in a recent telephone interview. "It's completely bizarre and confusing for me to listen to. I have no idea what it is. The minute I finished (2010's) Heartland, I could put it on. I can still put it on today and be like: 'Good record, thumbs up.'

"But I put on In Conflict, and I don't know if it's any good, but it certainly makes me feel things that I've never (felt). It's not an experience I typically have when I listen to my music. I'm usually thinking: 'Good work.'

"Now I'm kind of like, 'Oh my God, it's so crazy.'"

Well, craziness happens to be one of the main themes of Pallett's elliptical latest. He's careful to point out that he's not speaking in clinical terms, but using "crazy" in the colloquial sense. He's writing about the neurotic, obsessive and unstable elements that characterize — in his estimation — many creative people.

As usual with Pallett's work, the lyrics are occasionally inscrutable and obfuscate any autobiography in layers of allegory and clever language.

"I like to joke sometimes that I majored in music composition and I minored in axe murdering," said the Polaris Music Prize winner with a laugh.

"It's the product of recognizing a lot of tendencies within my own mental activity towards what would be described as 'not sane' ... But so much of that is linked to my creativity and to the thing that puts food on the table.

"I'm finding myself more and more drawn toward crazy people," he added. "The people who run the world are the people who have that level of obsession that they're going to stay up all night finishing that computer program, or whatever ... People don't understand that the people who make this (stuff), they're completely nuts."

And the knotty In Conflict does reflect a certain fastidious fanaticism. Though on some level Pallett's schedule was even more fragmented than usual — given his commitments to the Arcade Fire (he's a touring member) and other pursuits (penning the score to Spike Jonze's Her, for which he and Arcade Fire's Will Butler earned an Oscar nomination) — he devoted whatever spare time he could cleave to his solo work.

And in a coup that still elicits a charge from his voice, he recruited the massively influential electronic music pioneer Brian Eno to add winsome backup vocals, not his legendary production touch.

"I don't know what it would be like working with him in a production capacity, but probably pretty weird — I'm a control freak," Pallett deadpanned.

Macaulay's 'pizza band' too cheesy for British audience

It was a Blues Brothers moment for actor Macaulay Culkin and his band Pizza Underground on Sunday at the Dot to Dot Festival in Nottingham, England, when fans turned on the comedy cover group by booing them and even throwing beer onstage.

Unfortunately, Mac couldn't turn it around with a pizza-themed version of Rawhide to get the crowd going; the Home Alone star and the rest of Pizza Underground allegedly walked off stage smelling like booze after only three songs — but not before they performed a cover of Lou Reed's Perfect Day, calling it Pizza Day.

Culkin's band covers Velvet Underground and Lou Reed songs but changes the lyrics around to be about pizza.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Manhattan's got a friend in David Schwimmer

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News in New York City

David Schwimmer is one of the Friends I'd vaguely lost track of since the series came to an end. Is he the one playing an aging sitcom star on cable? No, that's Lisa Kudrow. Is he the one who's totally over Brad Pitt? That's Jennifer Aniston. Oh, now I remember. David Schwimmer is the one who battles crime.

Well, he fought for justice this week at least. Police were investigating an altercation between a suspected male prostitute, his john, and a third man that broke out at 5:40 a.m. on East Sixth Street in Manhattan's East Village, where the sitcom star owns a brownstone.

The 26-year-old john was taken to Bellevue Hospital with stab wounds on his face, while the 21-year-old alleged prostitute was treated for slashes on his arm. Police had only one man's word against the other's until they realized that security cameras outside Schwimmer's home had caught footage of the altercation, according to the New York Post. Schwimmer gave the NYPD the tape, which might be used in court.

Schwimmer bought his brownstone for $4 million US in 2012, and he's been heavily renovating it ever since, to the consternation of his neighbours. However, this incident might convince the other Sixth Street residents that good Friends make good neighbours after all.

Harry Styles

Kendall just can't get over Harry Styles

Well, this is awkward. While Harry Styles and Kendall Jenner's brief romance has been over for months, Jenner reportedly "just can't get him out of her head" and hasn't stopped calling the One Direction star "despite their romance fizzing out months ago," according to Star magazine.

"Now Kendall desperately wants him back. She loved the attention dating Harry gave her, plus she really fell for him big time," a source says. "Kendall really opened up to him and he did nothing but use her. That hasn't stopped her from dreaming of a rematch, and after a night out with the girls she'll come home and start calling him. Harry rarely takes her calls because he knows when he's pushed his luck when it comes to a woman's heart and Kendall's got it bad for him. He doesn't want to encourage her, but it's turning into an embarrassing situation — for both of them."

Rachel Bilson shows off her baby bump

Rachel Bilson isn't hiding the fact that she and longtime boyfriend Hayden Christensen are expecting. The couple headed to Barbados for a quick vacation, with Bilson showing off her growing baby bump in a black bikini, according to Us Weekly. "They've talked about this for a while and are so excited," a source tells the magazine. "Everyone is beyond thrilled for them."

Where the buffalo roam

Yellowstone. This massive, famed park stretches across three states — you need a plan to see it all

You can't miss the bison herds in Yellowstone. ISTOCK

Old Faithful likely comes to mind when you think of Yellowstone National Park. And it's certainly worth seeing, along with other geysers. But the geysers are just the start of what Yellowstone offers: hiking, biking, camping, fishing, wildlife-spotting and more. Yellowstone National Park covers 8,992 square kilometres over three states — Wyoming, Idaho and Montana.

With stops along the way, it can take two full days to drive the 230-kilometre Grand Loop. Here are some Yellowstone basics, starting with the geysers.

Geysers

Most of the park's easily accessible and most famous geysers are concentrated along a 50-kilometre drive in the middle of the park, from West Thumb, Wyo. to Madison Junction, Wyo. and can be seen in a half-day.

Park visitor centres can provide predicted eruption times for about a half-dozen geysers. Some predictions are in windows of several hours, so you'll likely spend some time waiting. Old Faithful erupts every 60 to 90 minutes. The exact timing depends on the previous eruption, so the park can predict only one eruption at a time.

Several other geysers are within walking distance, including the tiny Anemone erupting every 10 minutes or so. A few more clusters of geysers and hot springs are a short drive north along Grand Loop.

If your timing is right, don't miss the Grand Geyser, the tallest predictable geyser in the world, reaching as high as 60 metres and lasting up to 12 minutes. You might have to wait a few hours, though. The Grand Geyser has been erupting every seven or eight hours.

Hikes

The Divide hike is about 5.6 kilometres round trip and takes you to the Continental Divide, the line where water flows toward the Atlantic from one side and toward the Pacific from the other. There's no sign or any other marker at the top, so you'll have to use your imagination. The park rates the hike as moderately strenuous, given the climb of about 225 metres. Mystic Falls is more scenic. The start of the trail is close to the Biscuit Basin cluster of geysers, so you can get geysers and a hike both out of the way with one stop.

Give yourself at least two hours for the drive from the geysers to Mount Washburn. The trail to the top is well-maintained, but the hike isn't for those out of shape: You'll climb some 427 metres to an elevation of 3,122 metres. There are two ways up: The longer route, from Dunraven Pass, is about five kilometres each way, but it's less steep than the Chittenden Road option. Take the same route down; the parking lots for each trailhead are 10 kilometres apart.

In the distance, you can glimpse Yellowstone's version of Grand Canyon, a gorge formed by the Yellowstone River. There's a fire lookout tower with an observation deck at the top.

Grand Canyon

Yellowstone's Grand Canyon is worth its own visit. You have several long or short hikes to choose from, along either side of the canyon. If you're pressed for time, drive to the Upper and Lower Falls and view the rapids before a pair of drops into the canyon. For both falls, use paved overlooks or take short hikes for closer views. Visit the Upper Falls in the afternoon for a chance to see rainbows.

Wildlife and driving

Yellowstone is home to bison, moose, elk, bighorn sheep, wolves and grizzly bears. If you're looking to see a certain type of animal, ask at visitor centres where to go and the best time of day. Cars stopped or parked haphazardly along a road usually means there's something worth seeing. You can't miss the bison herds, but for other creatures, you may need binoculars.

Biking and Boating

You can bike along the Grand Loop on your own bike or by renting one near Old Faithful. There are boating and fishing opportunities as well; permits are required.

Getting there and lodging

The Grand Prismatic Spring in Yellowstone National Park.
JIM PEACO/YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK (FLICKR: YELLOWSTONENPS)

The bulk of the park is in northwest Wyoming and has five entrances, with gateway towns offering food and lodging.

The drive from the entrances to the main loop is long, so plan your access point and lodging carefully. There are nine lodges inside the park; consider switching hotels each night to be closer to another part of the park the next morning.

The park has a dozen campgrounds. Seven are first come, first served. Reservations for the others and for the lodges fill up fast.

Nearest airports with car rentals are in Cody and Jackson, Wyoming; Bozeman, Billings and West Yellowstone, Montana; and Idaho Falls, Idaho. If you have time, it may be cheaper to fly to Denver and drive the 885 kilometres to the park via Cody. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Move over,

New York's young creative types are migrating to trendier, less expensive parts of Bushwick's emergence as part of cutting-edge Brooklyn has not completely erased memories of the bad old days, when the working-class neighbourhood was known for crime.

Maria Hernandez Park is named for a woman who was killed in 1989 after standing up to drug dealers. Today the park is filled with flowers, skateboarders, dog-walkers and families. "No more shootings," said Elvin Alvarado, sitting on a park bench. "It used to be at 8 p.m., you could not pass. People were waiting for you."

Joe Ficalora grew up in the neighbourhood; his father was killed by a crackhead here in 1991. But Bushwick's murder rate has dropped 90 per cent since then, and Ficalora is thrilled with the transformation. He points to an old warehouse, now renting out gleaming apartments, as proof that the neighbourhood will not "turn into Detroit."

"No one wanted to live here before," said Ficalora, who promotes street art through a group called the Bushwick Collective. "No one wanted the beast. Now everyone loves the beast!"

Where the hippest New Yorkers go, tourists are sure to follow. So for out-of-towners willing to explore Bushwick, take the L subway line to Jefferson Street and start wandering. You'll find great eats and great art.

Street art

Along Troutman, Starr, Wyckoff and other streets, artwork decorates old factories, warehouses and even small apartment buildings. There's everything from a portrait of Pakistani education activist Malala Yousafzai to a picture of a flotation device with the words: "Street art saved my life."

You may see artists at work with spray paint, stencils, ladders and other tools of the trade, and you can sign up for a Bushwick street art tour through freetoursbyfoot.com, where participants pay what they wish for tours. Organizers estimate some 500 people have taken the two-hour New York Graffiti and Street Art Tour since it launched on March 1.

Ficalora also organizes an annual street festival showcasing artists, musicians and others contributing to the neighbourhood's renaissance. It's planned for June 1, 11 a.m.-7 p.m., on Troutman between Wyckoff and St. Nicholas.

A customer enjoys a slice of Tonya Charding thin-crust pizza at Roberta's, the most well-known of many new restaurants in Bushwick.

Shops

Ficalora's family operates a steel products company that's one of a number of manufacturers still located in Bushwick. But some industrial buildings have been repurposed for residential and retail use, like Shops at the Loom, which houses 20 stores in a renovated textile mill at 1087 Flushing Ave., including Gnostic Tattoo, the Bushwick Food Cooperative, Brooklyn Yarn Café, Loom Yoga Center, and Kave, a coffee bar that offers nut-milk lattes.

Artist Beau Stanton created the mural behind street artist Leandro Weisberg, a.k.a. "Tec," in the Bushwick area of Brooklyn.

Laura De Marco, an Italian visitor scoping out loft space for a photography workshop. "A lot of young artists live here," explained De Marco. "We're looking for a big space with light. Brooklyn is the place to do photography. This is the real Brooklyn."

Eating and drinking

Bushwick is an increasingly important player in Brooklyn's foodie scene. A tiny, upscale restaurant called Dear Bushwick at 41 Wilson Ave. offers a sumptuous "English Country Kitchen" menu with entrees in the $22 range like stuffed bass and roast chicken. Try Dear Bushwick's version of a Pimm's Cup, a refreshing gin cocktail that originated in 19th-century London. And enjoy the quirky decor: A picture of a caped damsel on a white horse sits next to a handwritten nursery rhyme, "Ride a cockhorse to Banbury Cross, to see a fine lady upon a white horse."

No description of Bushwick would be complete without Roberta's, 261 Moore St. The industrial-zoned block can seem deserted even when there's an hour-long wait for a table. Sometimes you can snag a seat at the bar and order food from there; additional tables are located in an atrium inside converted shipping containers, a dreamscape of corrugated industrial-chic green. In warm weather, there are outdoor tents and a tiki bar.

Hitting the road in eastern Europe

Cars and Krakow. The transit isn't always reliable, so why not take matters into your own hands and drive?

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

Eastern Europe, with its occasionally inconvenient train schedules, is the perfect destination for a week-long road trip.

Arrive by air in Krakow, Poland

Home to the largest market square in Europe and the stunning Wawel Castle, Krakow is the perfect size to explore on foot. The proliferation of statues and portraits of recently canonized Pope John Paul II is a reminder of this town's pride for its most famous son. Oskar Schindler, the German war profiteer who redeemed himself by saving thousands of Jewish lives during the Second World War, is another famous former inhabitant. His factory is now a fascinating museum.

Drive to Auschwitz-Birkenau Memorial & Museum, Poland

The extensive remains of this sinister camp are an hour and half from Krakow. I knew the experience wasn't going to be a happy one, but felt compelled to go. Instead of the usual sounds of group chitchat and camera shutters snapping, the four-hour tour here was silent. After seeing rooms stacked with stolen personal items, including human hair, it is impossible not to feel sick to your stomach. Unfortunately, history can be cruel.

Drive to Cesky Krumlov, Czech Republic

This stunning 17th-century town sits on a peninsula in the Vltava River, overlooked by an immense Renaissance castle. You could walk the entire town in two hours, but it's much more enjoyable to meander your way through the cobblestone streets. Take the audio tour of the castle, linger in the unique art shops and stop for a goblet or three of mead at the Two Marys medieval tavern.

Drive to Prague, Czech Republic

With only two days in Prague, it would be impossible to do justice to all of the big name sites; Prague Castle, Old Town Square, Wenceslas Square. Instead I followed my feet and wandered through the city's varied neighbourhoods. I did end up spending two hours on the Charles Street Bridge, transfixed by the interactions of buskers, artists and tourists underneath the baroque statues that line the parapets. I had an incredible Bohemian meal at the Blue Duckling, about a 10-minute walk from the bridge on the castle side. For the more budget conscious, I found fantastic pubs that brewed their own beer and happily served up a pint alongside a plate of goulash for less than ten dollars.

The tour of Auschwitz is solemn and silent. LOREN CHRISTIE

There's no place like home: Workers would rather telecommute than move

Staying on task while staying put. As more employees opt to work remotely, we consider how to do your best from your own nest

SIDNEYEVE MATRIX
TalentEgg.ca

Recognize what period of your day requires you to have no distractions, and take steps to secure some silence. ISTOCK

If you're a student, a recent grad, or an entrepreneurial startup type, chances are you're well-versed in working from home, at the library, and in various cafés around town.

In a new study conducted by Ipsos Reid on behalf of the Canadian Employee Relocation Council, researchers found that when it comes to the Canadian employment mobility landscape, more than half of those (55 per cent) who are currently employed would not relocate for a job under any circumstance.

Ask those who consider themselves under-employed and the percentage jumps to 6.5 out of 10. That still leaves a considerable percentage of workers who would greatly prefer to stay put, all things considered.

Remote (but tethered) workdays

Considering these figures, more employees and their companies may need to consider telecommuting options and using mobile technology and broadband connections to enable distributed (rather than co-located) teams.

Good news, then, that research shows part-time and flexible work-from-home strategies, if properly implemented, can have a positive impact for both businesses and staff.

With funding from the National Institutes of Health and Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, sociologists at the University of Minnesota have published a study showing that increased flexibility at work results in wide-ranging benefits.

Those study participants who were allowed to modify when and where they worked experienced fewer family-work conflicts, achieved greater well-being due to a sense of schedule control, and developed a stronger more supportive relationship with their supervisors.

Set the scene for agile productivity

- When you're mobile and working out-of-home, an extra portable battery charger for tablets and phones is a lifesaver.

Before buying, read the fine print and user reviews to determine whether it will charge your gadget batteries once, twice, or 10 times.

- To work smarter on your smartphone, load it up with time-tracking, list-making, product-managing apps.
- If you're in charge of your own schedule, be sure to determine your optimal working hours, and set clear boundaries (including with family and friends) to protect your personal prime time.
- To manage distractions at home or out-and-about, the combination of a social site blocker and some noise-cancelling headphones will put and keep you in the zone.
- If you're lucky enough to have dedicated office space at home, protect your body from soreness, numbness or strain by doing a little research into economical and ergonomically correct office furnishings.
- For an added productivity boost, paint one wall green. "Seeing greens on surfaces has been linked to thinking creatively," advises design and environmental psychologist Sally Augustin.
- Not ready to paint your walls? Get an office plant instead, to add a touch of greenery to your space, and because research indicates that sharing your desk with foliage or flowers will make you feel happier, too.

No time to make dinner tonight? Just grab tuna and go green

Tuna and Bean Spinach Salad. Fish gives you protein, the beans offer up a dose of fibre, and spinach is packed with nutrients

DINNER EXPRESS
Emily Richards
food@metronews.ca

Sometimes the comfort of salad fits the bill for a quick dinner — especially when you can make it in about 10 minutes!

Looking for a new salad for the summer weekends or weeknight meals? This one has fresh lemon flavour and crunch from the spinach.

Pack the tuna mixture separately and then toss it when you need it if you are packing it for lunch or to take away to a friend's.

1. In a large bowl, stir together tuna, beans and red onion. Add lemon rind, juice, broth, oil and pepper; stir until well coated. Stir in spinach and toss until leaves are coated. Divide among 6 plates to serve.

FLASH FOOD

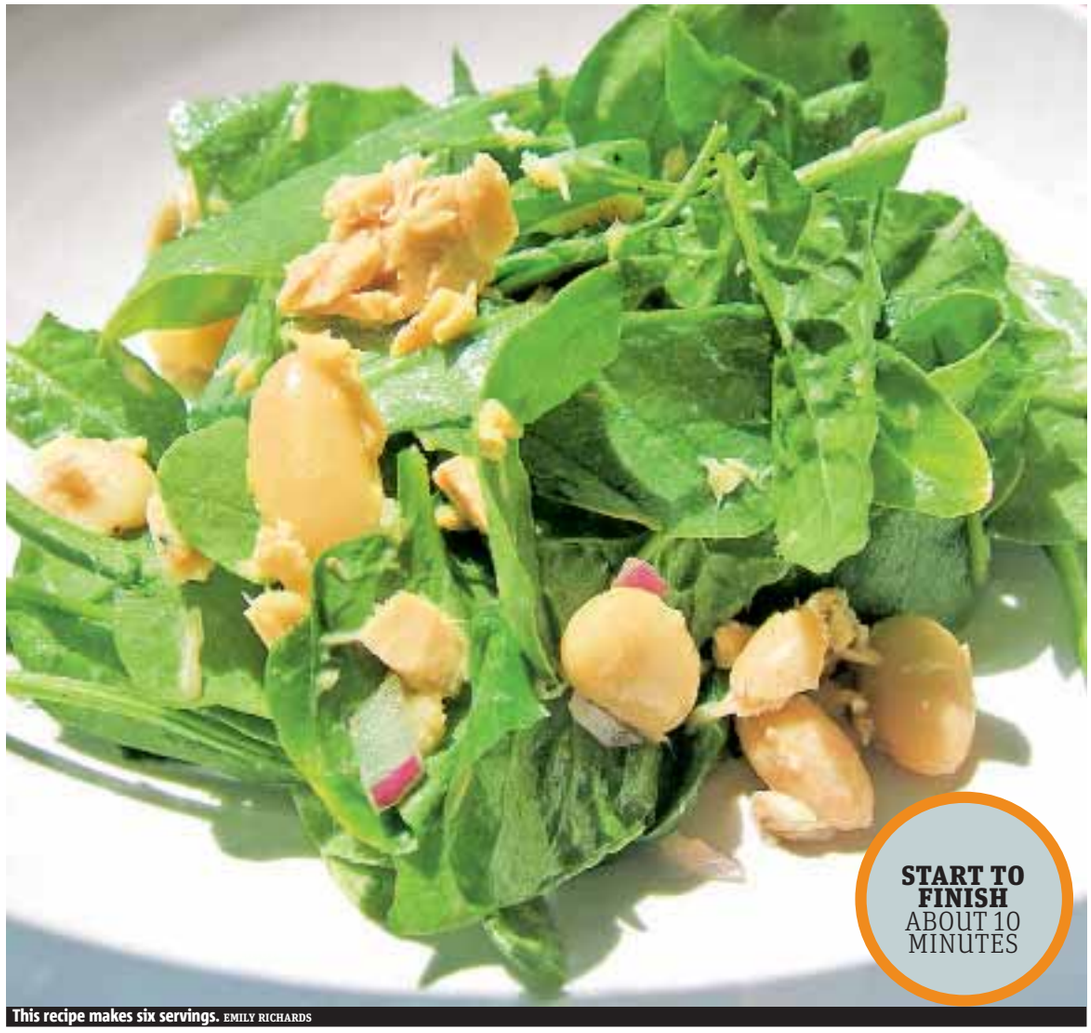
From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less

Cooking tips

- This is a great combination for two people to prepare in the kitchen. Make work fun when you have company and speed up the process even more. Whether you are a couple or a family, preparing meals together is quality time during which you can share your day's events and wind down. As the saying goes, home is where the heart is, and luckily also where a kitchen awaits with the aromas and flavours of delicious food to be enjoyed with friends and family!

Ingredients

- 2 cans (6 oz/170 g) light tuna in water, drained
- 1 can (19 oz/540 ml) white kidney beans, drained and rinsed
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) finely diced red onion
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) grated lemon rind
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) lemon juice
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) vegetable or chicken broth
- 2 tsp (10 ml) extra virgin olive oil
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) freshly ground black pepper
- 8 cups (2 l) lightly packed baby spinach leaves



This recipe makes six servings. EMILY RICHARDS

Colour your soup bowl

This Ginger Chicken and Orzo Soup soup is a perfect start to springtime. Colourful and easy to enjoy to start a meal or on its own with a crisp salad and a whole grain bun.

1. Using chef's knife, cut chicken into bite size pieces and place in bowl. Add ginger, parsley, garlic and pepper and toss to coat well.

2. In soup pot or saucepan, heat oil over medium high heat and cook chicken mixture, stirring constantly for 5 minutes. Stir in red pepper to combine.

3. Add broth and bring to boil. Add orzo and asparagus. Simmer 8 minutes or until orzo is tender and chicken is no longer pink inside. EMILY RICHARDS

Ingredients

- 1 lb (454 g) boneless skinless chicken breasts
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) minced fresh ginger
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) chopped fresh parsley
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- Pinch freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tsp (10 ml) canola oil
- 1 red bell pepper, chopped
- 1 box (900 ml) sodium reduced chicken broth
- 3/4 cup (175 ml) whole wheat or regular orzo pasta
- 1 cup (250 mL) chopped fresh asparagus

Goldeyes squeeze out win versus X's

To win in low-scoring games it takes quality late-inning pitching, solid base running, and of course, accurate play in the field. The Winnipeg Goldeyes found moments of all three Tuesday night, inching past the Sioux City Explorers 2-1.

The X's threatened in the ninth as a two-out single from former Goldeye Nate Samson tested the arm of Winnipeg shortstop Tyler Kuhn, as Kuhn cut off the throw from outfielder Ray Sadler and gunned Samson out at the plate from shallow left to end the game.

A stolen base from Goldeyes right-fielder Donnie Webb in the fourth set up a Casey Haerther RBI single that dribbled up the gut, tying the game 1-1.

The Fish took the lead in the fifth as Luis Alen's leadoff double cued Jake Blackwood to push a sac-fly to deep centre to make it 2-1.

Starter Kyle Anderson earned his second win in 6 1/3 innings of work, while closer Chris Kissock entered in the ninth to notch his third save.

The Goldeyes (8-4) wrap their home series with Sioux City (4-9) Wednesday.

Rookie camp comes amid CFL strike talk

Blue Bombers. Coach claims timing a coincidence as he prepares for new crop

The Winnipeg Blue Bombers will open their rookie camp Wednesday evening, the same day talks resume between the CFL and the players to avert a possible strike.

It's just a coincidence and camp was planned for that evening a long time ago, says Winnipeg head coach Mike O'Shea, who added Tuesday that he's prohibited from saying anything about the contract dispute.

But he's expecting about 45 players to attend his rookie camp for evaluation and has already seen a lot of them at a mini-camp the team held earlier this year in Florida.

"They've had a great start from Florida and that's part of the planning process, to use it to find guys that can help our roster and give them the opportunity to come in prepared to compete," he says.

It gives both coaching staff and players a better chance for a proper evaluation period since they've had that advance exposure to the Bombers and CFL football.

"Not (coming in) cold and, you know, only having 10 days of practising or 12 days of practising, whatever it works out to, to try and win a job, to try and make our team better. These guys, they've got a real opportunity and they're very prepared."

O'Shea isn't expecting the labour dispute to cast a shadow over camp.

"The players that are going to be here want to play. They want to work. They really love football.... We've tried to assemble good character guys that love to play the game."

O'Shea is a rookie himself as a CFL head coach and is anxious to get the season underway. The former Toronto Argonauts special teams co-ordinator was hired as the Bombers cleaned house last season when they finished in the CFL cellar at 3-15.

He insists he isn't having any butterflies of his own as he prepares for his first season as a CFL head coach.

"I'm very pleased with the way I'm feeling about it all. It's good, I'm fired up," he said.

2014 season

The Bombers play their first exhibition game June 9 when the Toronto Argonauts visit Investors Group Field to kick off the 2014 CFL pre-season. The Argos also visit Winnipeg to open the CFL's regular season June 26.

- This is the second season for the team's new stadium, with a price tag that has now easily topped $200 million thanks to repairs and modifications — including the enclosure of an unheated, open press box needed before Winnipeg could host the 2015 Grey Cup.

Bourque steadies Habs' ship in Game 5

NHL playoffs.
Canadiens come out on top of roller-coaster clash at Bell Centre

Game 5

Canadiens	Rangers

Rene Bourque scored three goals as the Montreal Canadiens chased goalie Henrik Lundqvist and defeated the New York Rangers 7-4 on Tuesday to stave off elimination in the NHL Eastern Conference final.

The Rangers, who lead the series 3-2, will have another chance to book a trip to the Stanley Cup final in Game 6 on Thursday night in New York.

Alex Galchenyuk, Tomas Plekanec and Max Pacioretty also scored for Montreal, which outshot the Rangers 28-27

Derek Stepan, playing with a guard on his helmet to protect a broken jaw suffered from a Brandon Prust hit in Game 3, returned to the lineup to score twice for the Rangers. Chris Kreider had a goal and three assists and Rick Nash also scored.

At 10:41 of the third, Rangers defenceman John Moore was given a major penalty and was ejected for a blindside, open ice hit on Dale Weise that was almost identical to Prust's hit on Stepan.

It was a night of strange bounces and spotty goaltending. Lundqvist was pulled in favour of Cam Talbot after allowing four goals on 18 shots, while Dustin Tokarski stayed in despite allowing four on his first 14. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hawks focused solely on Game 5

The special teams have been awful. The faceoff circle has been a huge problem. Patrick Kane, Marian Hossa and Patrick Sharp have combined for one goal for the Chicago Blackhawks.

The defending Stanley Cup champions are in big trouble in the Western Conference final, down 3-1 to the rolling Los Angeles Kings.

But the Blackhawks are back at home for Game 5 on Wednesday night, and have dug out of similar trouble before.

"Just looking to win Game 5," coach Joel Quenneville said after the Blackhawks arrived back in Chicago on Tuesday afternoon. "That's it. Get the momentum back and go from there."

The previous time this series was in Chicago, the Kings seized the momentum with a five-goal third period in a 6-2 victory in Game 2.

MacLellan lands job in D.C. after YOLO moment

Here's an audacious way to get a promotion: Tell the big boss what he's been doing wrong.

Brian MacLellan did just that when he interviewed with owner Ted Leonsis for the Washington Capitals general manager job.

"He led off with some of the things that I have to do to be a better owner," Leonsis said. "I thought that was very brave and very astute, because you don't want to hear things like that."

MacLellan's strategy helped him pull an upset. Leonsis was looking for a new direction and hadn't intended to promote from within after George McPhee's contract wasn't renewed, but MacLellan's candour helped him rise above the 15 or so candidates and land the job.

"I didn't think I had anything to lose," MacLellan said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

2014 Kia Rondo

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel drive compact 5 or 7-passenger wagon
- Engines (hp). 2.0-litre inline four-cylinder with direct gasoline engine (164)
- Transmissions. Six-speed manual, six-speed automatic
- Base price (incl. destination). $23,460

Market position

Despite the popularity of larger crossover vehicles, these tall hatchbacks offer an excellent alternative for those who prefer a compact vehicle. The Rondo's features and quiet ride make it a standout in the category.

Points

- 5-year/100,000 km warranty covers almost everything on the Rondo, while wear items such as wiper blades and brake pads have 1-year/20,000 km coverage.
- Completely redesigned for 2013, the Rondo is currently offered in Canada, but no longer in the United States.
- Fuel consumption of 9.2 L/100 km city and 6.3 highway (with automatic transmission) is best among its direct competitors.

As a hatchback, the Rondo comes with a spacious back end.

Safety

Front, side, and curtain airbags; brake assist and distribution; hill assist control; vehicle stability control; rear view camera and parking sensors on EX trims.

Rondo is a great family choice

Review. The Kia Rondo is a smooth-riding option to accommodate the whole clan

JIL MCINTOSH

I've always been fond of the so-called "tall wagon," a hatchback that combines the upright seating and practicality of a minivan or SUV, but with the compact footprint of a small car. The Kia Rondo fits the bill, in five-passenger seating, or with an optional third row for seven people.

There are three trim levels, and all use a 2.0-litre, four-cylinder engine that makes 164 horsepower, and 156 lb.-ft. of torque. The base LX trim starts at $21,795 and comes with a six-speed manual transmission, but it's there for price, not sportiness. Most buyers will opt for the smooth-shifting six-speed automatic, optional on the LX, and the only choice on the EX and EX Luxury trims.

The Rondo is spacious and comfortable, while the top-of-the-line seven-seat trim level includes such features as parking sensors, panoramic sunroof, and heated and cooled leather seats for $30,795, with navigation further available as an option.

It isn't the most fun-to-drive car on the market, but the ride is smooth, and it handles corners without feeling tippy despite its height. It's also confident and well-planted on the highway, and you can switch the electric power steering to feel lighter or more weighted, depending on your preference. It's also very quiet, thanks to a considerable amount of sound-deadening material, and visibility is excellent all the way around.

Kia put a lot of thought into the interior, with numerous little items to make life easier for families. The EX models have integrated rear-window sunshades, eliminating the need to use suction-cup versions to protect children from the sun, and there's a rechargeable flashlight in the cargo area. If you get the five-seat model, there's a large, covered storage bin under the cargo floor.

As with most tall wagons, it's easy to get in and out, especially for children or elderly passengers. The third-row's seats are nicely cushioned, but there's really only enough space for children.

Good-looking and thoughtfully engineered, the Rondo could well be a practical alternative to an SUV for many families.

Compare

1 Mazda5
Base price: $21,995
Rondo's closest competitor offers sportier handling, and seating for six.

2 Chevrolet Orlando
Base price: $20,195 Standard three rows and more powerful, but it's thirstier.

3 Dodge Journey
Base price: $21,495
Larger but still well-sized, and available with all-wheel drive.

A new condo tower in Toronto contains no parking spaces. MIKE GOETZ

You won't find a parking spot at this condo tower

Change in car culture.

42-storey condo first in Toronto to go "no parking," leading national trend

AUTO PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Another mile marker on the way to big change in automotive culture is a new and soaring 42-floor condominium structure on University Avenue in Toronto.

It offers lots of amenities, a nice selection of counter tops and bathroom tile, a snazzy foyer, but nothing resembling a parking garage.

There are only nine parking spots and those are reserved for a car-share program.

It might be the first new-build condominium in the country to offer "no parking" for all, but it won't be the last.

Municipalities have always enacted bylaws that stipulate how much parking had to be included in new developments. In downtown Toronto, for example, the requirement is 0.6 parking spots per unit. In other areas it could be as high as two spots per unit.

But the pressure is on to get rid of these parking requirements.

To go "no parking," this Toronto condo had to receive special approval from city council. In Calgary, officials are seriously considering green-lighting a condo tower with similar car-free ideals. And in Vancouver, they are moving toward new zoning that would allow developers to make their own calls about whether or not to put parking stalls in their buildings.

"This is the way we're headed," says Christopher Hume, the Toronto Star's architecture and urban affairs critic. "The people who live in these condos don't need or want a car. They choose these apartments and neighbourhoods so they don't have to go through the whole hassle of buying and operating a car."

Like we spoke about previously in this space, there is a young demographic out there which does not share the previous generations' drive for car ownership and car culture. That mindset is now making an impact on building design.

Throw in the growing popularity of such things as car sharing, Uber taxi, bicycling, and the pressure of land use in the city, and it's not hard to see why parking garages might become rarities in more and more urban neighbourhoods in the coming years. Hume adds that architects in the city are even contemplating a future where current underground garages might be re-purposed for other activities, such as studio space and light manufacturing.

As they are currently, parking garages are awful spaces.

Usually I feel nostalgic about anything car related going away. But a dank, filthy, underused underground garage somewhere downtown is not one of them. And I would say that even if I didn't get routinely lost in them. Just for the record, I think "exit" should mean "exit," and not, "go around in a circle a few more times, than try a left ... or right."

Quoted

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Be as carefree as you please over the next 24 hours. No one will mind in the least. Not that you care what others think but it's nice to have fun without being called irresponsible.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You must hold out for what it is you know you deserve. The planets indicate it will be your rivals who blink first, so look and act tough and be tough in your approach to negotiations.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
A new moon in your sign suggests whatever you start over the next 24 hours will work out well. Don't listen to those who say you should be cautious. It's your time to shine.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Because today's new moon falls in the most sensitive area of your chart, your best course of action over the next 48 hours is to withdraw from the world for. Start planning for the coming 12 months. They'll be special.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
If you need advice of any sort today, don't be afraid to ask your friends. The current new moon means they will help in any way they can, but you need to ask them first. They won't just offer their opinions.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
A new moon in the career area of your chart will give you the courage to make necessary changes on the work front. It's your life, it's your career and it's your choice as to what you do with them both.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You have a lot to say for yourself and most of it is worth listening to, but be careful you don't say anything that might upset people whose support you are going to need.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
If you have been thinking of ways to make money, now is the time to come to a decision about your strategy. What you start over the next few days will reap rich rewards during the second half of the year.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
It may be that your rivals have the advantage but what happens today and tomorrow will give you the courage, as well as the opportunity, to turn the tables on them.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Keep doing what you are doing and don't listen to those who say you should be doing something else. The more they try to pick holes in your plans, the more certain you can be that you're on the right track.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Today's new moon in your fellow Air sign of Gemini will inspire you to put your talents to good use. Relationships will go well too, so be assertive and dynamic and make sure others know what it is you desire.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Be more open about your feelings, especially if you are the kind of Pisces who tends to keep your emotions bottled up inside. It is good to release the pressure. SALLY BROMPTON
